Zimmerman's Uncle Says the Fortune Is Underestimated.

Thinks the Van Hoes Estate in Harlem is Part of It.

Arthur R. Macdonald, of 222 Newark street, Hoboken, who says he is the uncle of Police Sergt. John Zimmerman, of Williamsburg, who is believed to be one of the heirs to an estate estimated at $25,000,000, as told in yesterday's "Evening World," says that he also has an interest in the estate, and is very anxious to meet the lawyer, a Mr. Hilly, who is represented as looking for the heirs. Macdonald is a carpenter, and gives his age as thirty-seven. He is married and has four children. He claims an interest in the estate through his in-law, whose maiden name was Browne. She claimed an interest in the Van Hoes estate in Harlem, and with others formed a company to push their claims in 1875. A lawyer named Humphreys was employed to look after the company's interests. Macdonald believes that the property to which Zimmerman is said to have an interest is worth $60,000,000, and that it is the same estate in which his mother was interested. Macdonald states that he is one of thirteen children, of whom two girls and four boys are now living in Newburg, but he says he does not know their addresses. One of his sisters, Mrs. Charles Clark, resides at Rivington, and though he claims to be her brother, Zimmerman's uncle, he has never seen the Sergeant. He says he will look Zimmerman up, and ascertain how his interests in the fortune stand.
